

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor memory device and method of manufacturing a semiconductor memory device that prevents oxidation of the bit lines caused by misalignment which may occur when patterning a storage electrode. An oxidation preventing layer, such as a nitride
5 layer, is formed over the bit lines or in the contact holes to eliminate the diffusion of oxygen into the bit line structure, thereby preventing oxidation of the bit lines.

09008525-011698
B69T.D. 52580060